Adventurous Spirit

Somers & Hervey is named after two free-spirited explorers and early settlers in the region: Philip Somers and Matthew Hervey.

Somers joined Alan Cunningham's botanical expeditions along Australia's east coast, and named Hervey Range in 1861 after his co-owner of Dotswood station. Hervey's name has become synonymous with Townsville's south-west as a result, and by and by acknowledging these pioneering founders of the region, we also recognise the importance of our local flora.
